

A night of art, wine and conversation

A special open house was held Friday, June 30, at Tom Christopher's Lift Trucks Project art gallery in Croton Falls. The event, which was sponsored by the North Salem Republican Party, was designed to showcase "undiscovered gems in the community," according to organizer Karen Aronian.

"We wanted to give the community an opportunity to have a glimpse into Tom's gallery and studio and let people see the magic behind the artist and a look at where it's all created," Aronian said.

Christopher's critically acclaimed expressionist urban paintings and murals, many featuring New York City, have been shown at art galleries worldwide since 1980.

His gallery at 3 E. Cross St., Croton Falls, is open to the public. Visit www.ltp-project.com/ for more information.

Jessica and Sarah flank County Legislator Francis Corcoran.

Jack Aronian reacts to artwork of a lion.

Jack Aronian, Olivia Santulli, Jessica Corcoran, Sarah Corcoran, Karen Aronian, Legislator Francis Corcoran and artist and gallery owner Tom Christopher hanging together.

Neal Maison, Susan Lucas, Joan Rinaldi, Supervisor Warren Lucas, Paul Rinaldi and Elaine Sweeney enjoying a moment together.

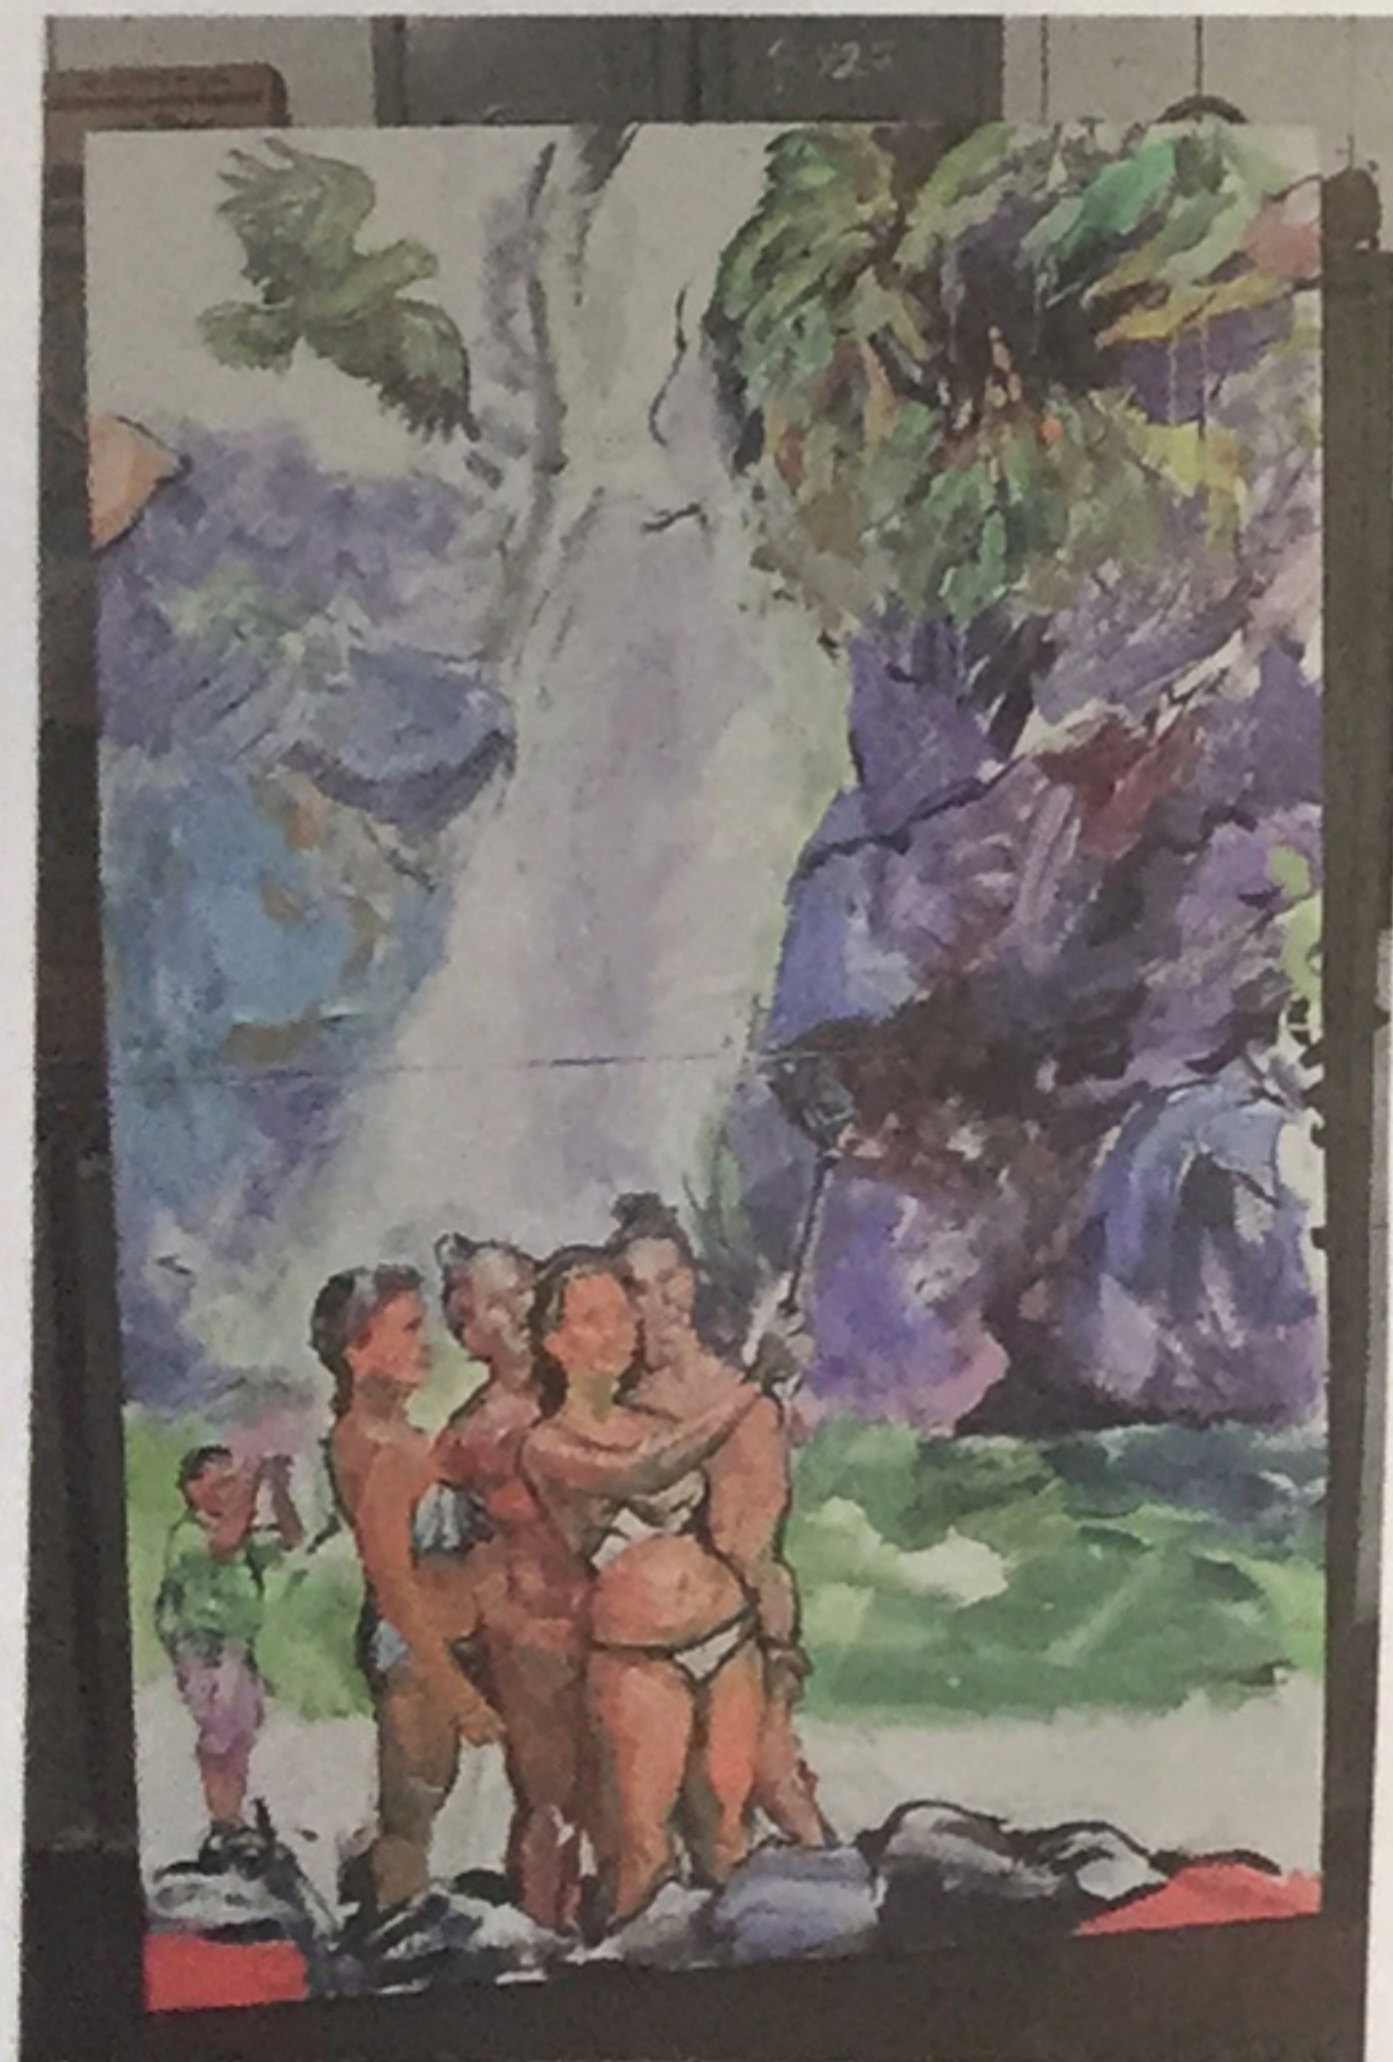

Paul Caputo and Nzingha Milanes

Paxton and Sharon Ballard

Barry Naderman and Constance Dalvito flank gallery owner and artist Tom Christopher.

One of Tom Christopher's artworks

Dan Renda, Dr. John Aronian, Christine Renda, Paxton Ballard, Tom Zahn and Sharon Ballard socializing during the event.

Dr. John Aronian, Karen Aronian, Dr. Dianne Aronian, Jack Aronian, Jenna San Antonio, Cathy San Antonio

PHOTOS COURTESY OF KAREN ARONIAN
More of Christopher's artwork.